

BioEngineering

BioEngineering is one of the newer research areas to be incorporated into IRIS. Nevertheless, the team which has been assembled is predominantly composed of senior researchers from both industry, international and local research organisations. The team of staff has already attracted substantial research funding from the US government's defence budget and has been successful in attracting industry funding from leading European industry sectors, notably a world leader in consumer cosmetic products. The Biotechnology group now occupies one of the new specialist IRIS laboratory areas.